Montauk Distilling Co. is proud to share with you, their Montauk Navy Strength Rum. Way back in 1731, the Royal Navy began a daily rum ration tradition while stationed in the West Indies. Every sailor had the right to a “tot” of rum measuring about half a pint, distributed midday. Rum rations were lit on fire to “prove” that the strength of the spirit was greater than 57 percent ABV. This long-held tradition continued for over 230 years and eventually came to an end on July 31, 1970—Black Tot Day. Please join us and raise a glass to our men and women in uniform—we salute you.
